Murders and Suicides.

A correspondent of a Chicago paper ex presses the belief that the great increase in what it was a few years ago, is due to the of self-murder, and the throwing around it. oftentimes, the atmosphere of heroism or martyrdom. Believing that such is the fact, and that such publications exercise an un for the sake of notoriety, the methods o the suicides, he suggests that for the good be omitted from the public press. This idea is by no means new, for a similar theory not only with regard to suicide but with regard to murders, has had many advocates in times past. [Indeed the fact is so well established as scarce ly to admit of a doubt, that any crime suicide, which creates a profound sensation in the community where it is committed, is almost certain to be followed at no distant day, by similar deeds of violence.

It is also well known and generally admitted, that public executions of criminals are likely to be followed by murders, as a haps on account of the brutalizing effect of such exhibitions, and partly from an instinct, or morbid desire, to imitate the crimes which led to them. This is only another phase of the same subject, and all go to show that there is a sort of psychology bid imagination, find it difficult to resist. This being the case, the proposition or rathreferred to, is a good one, and if all public journals, would by common consent, con-fine themselves, in case of the occurrence of a murder or suicide, to the bare mention sult in good. We are all familiar with the fact that one horrible tragedy is almost certain to be followed by others, similar in of the Maine Homeopathic Medical Society met in Augusta Tuesday and continued been called a wave of murder or suicide, an expression quite appropriate in describthrough Wednesday. Sadie Southard Libt. vs. Charles H. Southard.
And now on suggestion to the Court that the defendant, at the date of the writ was not an inhabitant of this State, and that he has had no notice of said suit, it is ordered, that notice of the pendency of this suit be given to the said defeadant, by publishing an attested copy of this order, together with an abstract of the plaintiff's writ, three weeks successively in the Maine Farmer, a newspaper printed at Augusta, in County of Kennebec, the last publication to be not less than thirty days before the next term of this Court to be holden at Augusta, within and for the County of Kennebec, on the first Tuesday of August, 1878, that said detendant may them and there appear, and answer to said suit, if he shall see cause.

(Abstract of pil's writ.)

This is a libel for divorce from the bonds of matrimony is inserted in a writ of attachment dated Jan. 19, 1878, returnable to said March term. The plaintiff alleges that the parties were married in Augusta, Oct. 7th, 1876, and that ahe has ever been chaste and faithful to her hashand, but that he assaulted, beat and dil treated her, that he neglected to provide for her, and finally deserted her. She also complains that prior to said desertion in December, 1877, he was a confirmed, habitual and common drunkard. She therefore prays for a divorce and for alimony. (Signed) Saids Southard.

The city of Marseilles, in France, was once affleted with the plague. So terrible was it, that it caused parents to desert children, and children forgot their obligations to their own parents. The city became as a desert, and funerals were constantly passing through its streets. Everybody was sad, for nobody could stop the ravages of the plague. The physicians could do nothing, and as they met one day to talk over the matter and see if something could be done to prevent this great destruction of slite, it was decided that nothing could be effected without opening a corpse in order to find out the mysterious character of the disease. All agreed upon the plan, but who shall be the victim? It being certain that he would die soon after. There was a dead pause. Suddenly one of the most celebrated physicians, a man in the prime of life, rose from his seat and said:

"Be it so; I devote myself for the safety of my country. Before this numerous assembly I swear, in the name of humanity and religion, that to-morrow, at the break of day, I will dissect a corpse, and write down as I proceed, what I observe."

He immediately left the room, and as he was rich he made a will and spent the night in religious exercises. During the day, a man had died in his house of the plague, and at daybreak on the following morning, the physician whose name was Guyon, entered the room and critically made the accessary examinations, writing down all the surgical observations. He then left the room, threw the papers into a vase of vinegar, that they might not convey the disease to another and retired to a convenient place where he died in twelve hours. Was not this a true hero? While we all admire the bravery which appears on the battle-field, let us not forget that there is an opportunity for the heroic in other places as well.—

Rockport, Mass., April 2, 1877.

Mr. Editor :—Having read in your paper reports of the remarkable cures of catarrh, I am induced to tell "what I know about catarrh," and I tange the "saum" and "inhiling-tabe" makers (mere dollar grabbers) would be glad if they could embiazon asimilar cure in the papers. For 29 years I suffered with catarrh. The nasal passages became completify closed. "Sanfi," "dust," "sakes," "inhaling-tibes" and "sticks" wouldn't work, though at interval I would suff up the so-callec cartarrh snuf, until I became a valuable test for such medicines i gradually gre w core, and no one can know how much I suffered or what a miserable being I was. My head ached over my gyes so that I was confined to my bed for many successive days, suffering the most intense pain, which at one time lasted continuously for 16s hours. All sense of smell and taste gone, sight and bearing impaired, body sbruuken and weakened, nervous system shattered, and constitution brokes, and I was hawking and spitting seven-eighths of the time. I prayed for death to relieve me of my suffering. A favorable motion in your paper of Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy induced me to purchase a package, and use it with Dr. Pierce's Nasal Douche, which applies the remedy by hydrostatic pressure, the only way compasible with common sense. Well, Mr. Editor, it did not oure me in three-fourths of a second, nor in one hour or month, but in less that eight minutes i was relieved, and in three months entirely cured, and have remained so for over sixieen months.
